LOCATION

The small village of Ashton lies approximately half way between Milton Keynes and Northampton and has its own primary school, church and public house, The Old Crown Inn. Further facilities including secondary schooling can be accessed in the larger nearby village of Roade or in the old market town of Towcester, 1¼ and 6 miles away respectively. Ashton parish is itself only about 3 miles at its longest point which runs from the Stoke Bruerne lock through to Salcey Forest, both of which are also notable local attractions. Access to the village is provided via the A508 Market Harborough to Milton Keynes road which in turn gives access to J15 of the M1 just 4 miles away. Finally, mainline train services to London Euston and Birmingham New Street are provided from both Northampton and Milton Keynes stations.
